

Internet Privacy Policy

Internet Privacy Policy Although any personal information sent to the Novamont SpA site will be handled in accordance with the Italian law on confidentiality, any non-personal information sent to Novamont SpA via the Internet (including suggestions, ideas, diagrams, projects, etc) will be, and will remain the exclusive property of Novamont SpA, who will have every right to use it as they see fit, and without any charge. This non personal information must not be considered confidential.

Novamont SpA does not sell, hire or make available to third parties in any way any personal data (name, address, telephone number, fax number, e-mail address) sent by anyone that accesses this site. Furthermore, no data you enter on our site will be used for any initiative of direct marketing or contact of any kind by Novamont SpA, without your being informed about the possible use or without your consent, as required by Italian Law No. 196/2003 (Personal Data Protection Code). On obtaining your consent, Novamont SpA will be able to use your data to answer queries, messages, and questions, or to send any publicity material or information, or for other purposes of which you will be informed at the time of giving your consent.

Novamont SpA uses data (browser, geographical location, age ...) in an anonymous form in order to optimise its sites, to improve their efficiency continuously, and for statistical purposes in general, in order to know more about Consumers and Clients. However, under no circumstances will Novamont SpA make this information available to third parties. Data relating to children and teenagers under the age of 18 years, may only be entered on our site by the parents or guardians, or with their consent. You may exercise your rights relating to the information you have entered, at any time (as stipulated in Art. 7 of Italian Law No. 196/2003).
